Senator Lodge expressed the belief, in the course of the debate on the resolution, that a new treaty of peace with Germany would be negotiated as soon as the ground had been cleared by the passage of the Knox measure. However, he said, this was a matter to be taken up by the President.

The debate to day was sharp, characterized by partisan attacks of Democratic Senators. The Senate met at 11 o'clock this morning to consider the resolution and it was under fire throughout the day.

Senator Lodge opened the discussion by an exposition of the purposes of the resolution and a defense of it. He declared the League of Nations was dead, and made it plain he did not believe it practicable to adopt the Versailles Treaty minus the league covenant and with reservations. He said that according to the best calculations he had been able to make it would require "at least seventy-two amendments to the Treaty or Versailles to get the league out of it, and when we have got it out nothing but the shell remains."

Borah Attacks Treaty

Senator Borah also made an attack on the Versailles Treaty. Although he did not say so, he left no room for doubt that if the Versailles Treaty with reservations were ever signed by this country and submitted to the Senate he would fight to the limit against it. He charged that it was worse than the league, that it had thrown Europe into economic chaos, that it was un

Princess Anastasia to-day appeared extremely weak and much thinner than before her critical illness. She sat in an invalid's chair, being still too weak to stand. The engagement of her son, she declared, had broken her heart and on learning of it she wept three days and three nights, refusing to see him. The objections of the princess to the match, she said, were based on the youth and inexperience of the couple, but she finally yielded to her boy's persuasion.

"To delay seven days and then to accept whatever promises Germany might make is absurd!" cried Briand. "The Germans are the same people, who said: "The Treaty of Versailles is worth nothing because it is an instrument of force," and their promises have no worth whatever."

Lloyd George then advanced the suggestion that German customs and finances be placed under Allied control. To this the French Premier replied that the creation of a new army of Allied officials would not help, as they would be expelled from Germany as soon as the Berlin government felt itself this to take such a step.

At this point Premier Lloyd George is understood to have said flatly:
"But you wish to annex the Ruhr district!"
